ENDS 20 YEARS SERVICE HERE

DEAN COLBERT TO LEAVE COLLEGE SEPTEMBER 1.

BEGAN WITH SCHOOL

Well-Known Teacher Has Been Consistent Supporter of Civic Enterprises.—No Future Plans.

With twenty years of service as a teacher at the State Teachers College completed, it was announced this morning that Dean George H. Colbert will retire from that institution on September 1. Mr. Colbert, who came to the institution on its foundation in 1906, has been dean of the College faculty since 1909.

Dean Colbert made no announcement today as to his future plans. Neither was there information concerning the future of the office of dean of the College faculty. Under the present faculty council organization, it will not be necessary to name a new dean at once.

Came Here In 1906.

When the College was first founded as the Northwest Normal in 1906, Mr. Colbert was called to the faculty from Page County, Ia., where he was county superintendent of schools. He came to the institution as an instructor in mathematics.

The first session of the Normal was held in the old Maryville High School building, located where the present school is. This was a summer term. In the fall, the institution was moved to the old seminary building which had been bought by citizens of Nodaway County from the Methodist Church and given to the state for the purpose.

In 1909, Mr. Colbert was appointed dean of the Normal faculty, the position which he has since held. He has continued with his teaching, however, and at present is in charge of two mathematics classes in addition to the duties of the deanship.

Has Seen School Grow.

Mr. Colbert has seen the school grow. In its first year, more than 70 per cent of the students were completing high school work. Today, less than 5 per cent of the student body is of high school rank.

Dean Colbert has been a consistent supporter of civic enterprises during his residence here. A member of the local Presbyterian Church, he has been a member of the session for seventeen years, and was Sunday School superintendent for six years.

He was chairman of the lyceum bureau organized from the clubs and schools of Maryville for three years, and served as a member of the chautauqua committee for four or five years. He has been a member of the local Chamber of Commerce for a number of years and is also a member of the Maryville Country Club.

A host of former students and residents all over this part of the country will be surprised at Dean Colbert's retirement. During his twenty years of service here, he has endeared himself to both students and townspeople and there will be regret in the severance of his connection with the institution.

Aden Owens and J. E. Smith Get Three Years.—Two Youths Admit Car Stealings.

Five men were sentenced to the penitentiary at the opening of circuit court this morning before Judge Guy Park of Platte City. The sentence of Robert N. Barber, cashier of the defunct Northwestern Bank at Burlington Junction is given elsewhere. The other four men sentenced were:

Aden Owens and J. E. Smith for three years each.

Lee Pate for three years and Quincy Hubbard for two years.

Owens and Smith entered a plea of guilty to grand larceny, stealing sheep from C. C. Carr and Sherman Pierpoint. Their accomplices, W. H. Steele and Ed Brody, received like sentences several weeks ago by Judge John M. Dawson.

Owens and Smith were arrested Sunday. Owens, 31 years old, is a former police officer and railroad detective, and Smith, 25, is a former city fireman of St. Joseph. Owens, who has been living in Kansas City lately, was caught Sunday morning, while Smith was arrested at his home in St. Joseph on Sunday. The sheep was valued at $1,500.

Lee Pate, who said he is 21 years old, and was out on parole from California, got three years for stealing the Howard Masters car here Friday night. His partner in the crime, Quincy Hubbard, who gave his home as Emporia, Kan., and his age as 19 years, said he had never been in trouble before. Pate is also wanted in St. Joseph on a charge of stealing tires.

Hubbard was caught in the old mill near Quitman Saturday and Pate was arrested when he returned from Skidmore to Quitman on the evening train Saturday evening. The Masters car was found in weeds and brush near the Nodaway river near Quitman.

Sheriff Campbell will take the five men to the penitentiary at Jefferson City probably some time during this week.

Record Throng Gathers at Chicago's Stadium

Crowd In and Near Field Estimated At One Million.—Number of Women in Faint In Jam.

Chicago, June 22.—A record throng, mightier than that of yesterday in numbers, and because most of its members were women, mightier in determination to pay homage to the king of their faith, today stormed Soldiers' Field in Grant Park before and during the second great open air demonstration of the twenty-eighth international Eucharistic congress.

It was women's day at the Congress and besides the 200,000 packed within the huge stadium, a crowd estimated at 800,000 milled around the high walls of the field on the outside.

Fifty women fainted, several were crushed and scores of persons were clubbed by militant police in a determined effort to clear the gate at the north end of the stadium where 15,000 women were concentrated just outside the gates were unable to gain entrance.

Several women fainted and police took them over the top of the high wall surrounding the stadium. Then a nun fainted and the gate was opened to permit her being carried in. Immediately the crowd surged forward. The gate was torn from its hinges and 500 women succeeded in getting through before the police could stop the crowd.

The spectacle within the stadium rivaled that of yesterday when 62,000 children sang mass.

R. N. BARBER PLEADS GUILTY; GETS TEN YEARS IN PRISON

BURLINGTON JUNCTION BANKER SENTENCED THIS MORNING.

SAW NO USE TO FIGHT

Cashier's Wrongdoing Began When He Tried to Aid Relatives, Says Prosecutor.

Just four weeks to a day after the closing of the Northwestern Bank at Burlington Junction, Robert N. Barber, cashier of the bank for twenty-two years, was sentenced this morning to ten years in the penitentiary on charges of embezzlement and forging of notes. He was arraigned in circuit court at 8:30 o'clock this morning before Judge Guy Park of Platte City, who is presiding for Judge John M. Dawson.

Barber entered a plea of guilty to one charge of embezzlement of $487 and of forging the names of Luther Fast and Irvin Fast to a note for $1,000. His sentence was five years in each case.

George Pat Wright, prosecuting attorney, in a statement to the court said in part as follows:

Much Confidence in Him

"Robert N. Barber, who has been cashier of the Northwestern Bank at Burlington Junction, was a man everyone had confidence in. He has been cashier of that bank for many years. I have known Barber intimately for a number of years.

"Barber was the man who ran the bank. The others around there were employees who did clerical work.

Everybody Wanted Bob.

"Barber tells me there is no disposition to avoid anything. He states his wrong doing started several years ago when he helped out his kinsfolk at Skidmore (W. F., F. C. and S. W. Barber). The bank examiner who examined the Northwestern Bank at that time stated the Barbers had to do something about the notes in the Northwestern Bank. They amounted in round numbers to about $50,000. The board of directors also told Barber to do something about it. This was the beginning of Bob Barber's wrong doing. Then his kinsfolks made an assignment to their creditors, leaving Barber and the Northwestern Bank out of it, and leaving Barber holding the sack.

"There are a series of forged notes and other matters of irregular conduct on the part of Barber in the closing of the Northwestern Bank. Barber has been frank and open about many of these matters and has not tried to conceal anything."

Asks No Counsel

Barber then was asked by the court whether he wanted counsel appointed for him. He replied he did not. Then the court asked:

"Do you understand fully the situation?"

Barber answered that he did.

Sentence was then pronounced and the court made a few remarks. Judge Park said:

"A banker in a town occupies a unique and distinguished position. Ordinarily, and I understand from what Mr. Wright said, that you, Mr. Barber, were no exception. The banker is a leader in civic and social affairs and an advisor to merchant, farmer, widow, orphan and others. The farmer comes to him to know when to sell his hogs, the merchant when needing advice. He has an unusual position of trust.

"Mr. Barber, you have betrayed that trust. Not long ago I sentenced two young men to the penitentiary for robbing a bank, the sentence of one being for ten years and the other for fifteen years. Bad whisky, the fact the boys were poor and needed money were given as the causes.

"Worse Than the Bandit"

"The betrayal trust from a man inside of the bank is a worse criminal than a man that loots a bank from the outside.

"Mr. Barber, you should used your time during your term in the penitentiary to reflect and to think of the many sorrows you have brought to that community."

Barber's plea of guilty was to embezzling and converting to his own use bank funds of $487. This specific act, according to Prosecutor Wright, was committed between April 21 and 26 of this year. The Journal of the Northwestern Bank gave the total amount of drafts issued on the American National Bank at St. Joseph to be $702.45. The draft register of this bank gave the total amount of drafts issued on that date to be $3,212.45, which makes a difference between the journal entries and the draft register of $2,510. However, Mr. Barber stated to R. E. Shelby bank examiner, who took charge of the Northwestern Bank at Burlington Junction when it closed, that he sent personally to the American National Bank at St. Joseph a remittance for the credit of the Northwestern Bank in the amount of $2,023, and this amount was credited to the balance of the bank. The difference, $487, is a net shortage in this transaction. Barber stated that this $487 was used by him personally to pay back interest and taxes on some land in Taylor County, Ia.

Other Charges Not Called Up.

Other embezzlement charges, totalling $8,870, are still on the record.

Barber's plea of guilty to forgery was for the forgery of the names of Luther and Irvin Fast to a note for $1,000. The case charging forgery of Miles Fast's name to a note for $2,000 was not called up.

When a representative of the Democrat-Forum talked to Barber after he had received his sentence, Barber said he had nothing to say. He added:

"It's bad enough and a statement from me would not help things. I took this action as I could not evade it. To fight it would be a losing proposition and would mean the same thing. I wasn't guilty of some of the charges of embezzlement and would not have pleaded guilty to them."

Barber, it is said, said he did not personally profit from some of the embezzlement charges.

The entire proceedings in circuit court occupied about ten minutes. There were only the court officials, Barber, and a few others in court at the time. Barber appeared to be despondent, and looked as if he had been ill. However, when he talked to a representative of this paper, he appeared more like his usual self.

Shortage May Reach $100,000

The Northwestern Bank was closed at Burlington Junction when irregularities were discovered in the accounts kept by Barber. This action was taken by the board of directors of the bank on the night of May 24, and the next morning the bank closed. Barber on account of his long connection with the bank and his standing in the community had the confidence of the people of that community. Since the closing of the bank, there have been many stories about forged notes, shortages, missing bonds and papers, and other irregularities. It was estimated by one party recently that these would probably run $100,000, if not more. It was reported that the Pat Cummins estate was many thousand dollars loser in irregular transactions, bad notes and etc., caused by Barber's defalcations.

Barber also speculated in farm land during the boom of a few years ago. The depression in farm values is said to have "caught" him.

Barber is 51 years old. He was first arrested on the night of June 3 for embezzlement. Bond was furnished for $4,000. Then Barber was arrested again at Shenandoah, Ia., on charges of forged notes, this occurring June 14. He was brought to Maryville on the night of June 14 and has been in the county jail since that time. During that time he has been visited by several persons from the Burlington Junction community and has admitted many acts of wrongdoing. Barber employed no lawyer and stated he was ready to "take his medicine."

Barber is a native of Nodaway County, having been born here on November 21, 1874. He was born in Monroe township. He secured his elementary education in the public schools of Burlington Junction, supplementing this with a commercial course at Maryville, completing his studies in 1892. He became assistant cashier of the Northwestern Bank at Burlington Junction in 1898 and in 1904 became cashier of that institution. He has since been connected with the bank. Barber has a wife and two children, a boy and a girl.

This is the first time in the history of Nodaway County that a banker has been sentenced to the penitentiary, according to several men here.

W. C. T. U. AIDS GOV. PINCHOT

ORGANIZATION'S FUND USED IN SENATE RACE.

WOMEN TAKE STAND

Tell Of Efforts To Raise Money—Mellon Faction Wanted Secretary Davis For Governor.

Washington, June 22.—Governor Gifford Pinchot used the W. C. T. U. as an auxiliary campaign committee in the three-million-dollar Senatorial primary, it was revealed to the Senate slush fund committee today by Mrs. Ella George of Beaver Falls, Pa., the state president of the organization.

The dry organization sent out speakers encouraging Pinchot's nomination and three times broadcast circular letters in his behalf while throwing all his influence to his support. Pinchot ordered the bills, Mrs. George said.

Washington, June 22.—Constantly running into new surprises in the investigation of Pennsylvania's recent three-million-dollar Senatorial primary the Senate slush fund committee today centered its spotlight on the interesting row within the ranks of the W. C. T. U.

The Senate investigators sought to learn the truth of the charges that Governor Gifford Pinchot turned the great temperance organization into a political machine to aid his candidacy for the Senate. The temperance row, growing out of the recent election, forms a relief from the subjection of male politicians such as had been the committee's regular diet for the last two weeks.

It was revealed by Mrs. Joseph T. Seymour of McConnellsburg, Pa., a state vice-president, who told of the women undertaking to raise a $250,000 fund to enforce Governor Pinchot's prohibition program. The committee sought more light on the use of this fund of which, according to Mrs. Seymour, $150,000 already has been turned over to a Pinchot representative.

While the governor disclaimed all personal connection with the fund, Mrs. Seymour complained that the membership of the union has never been given an adequate account of how it was spent.

Hints, incidentally, have reached the committee that some temperance advocates may have used part of the fund to help their candidate for the Senate.

Washington, June 22.—The Mellon faction in Pennsylvania was unanimous in trying to get Secretary of Labor Davis to run for the Republican nomination for governor, W. Harry Baker, former chairman of the state Republican committee, told the Senate campaign expenditures committee this afternoon.

When the efforts failed to lure Davis from his cabinet post, the Mellon faction turned to John S. Fisher, former railroad attorney, who won the nomination.

Committee's O. K. on Revised River Bill

Washington, June 22.—Continuing consideration of the rivers and harbors bill, the Senate commerce committee today by a vote of 5 to 3 adopted a revised draft of the Missouri River project.

The new provision gives indirect government approval of the project to extend the navigability of the Missouri from Kansas City to Sioux City, Ia., but limits expenditures to twelve million dollars.

THINK BEFORE YOU VOTE

The ballot is being handled entirely too carelessly nowdays. If any man thinks it makes no difference who holds the offices, he is himself a menace to good government. Serious thought should be given as to the fitness of candidates for the offices they seek. Men may be good citizens but wholly unfitted for the particular positions they seek.

A profound responsibility rests upon the individual voter in the selection of members of the Supreme Court of the State. These places are elective and they provide ten year terms. A mistake once made cannot be corrected. The highest court in the state is a great body whose responsibilities are beyond estimate. Men find fault with the courts for various reasons, and the least the citizenship of the state can do is to man the courts with the best material available.

A man who assumes the responsibilities of a judgeship should be thoroughly grounded in the law both by study and wide experience in practice. He should have poise, balance, breadth of vision, the spirit of fairness and justice, and the wisdom and judgment that comes with age and long experience in the courts. A want of any of these essentials will be a handicap to needed efficiency.

Justice R. F. Walker, one of the oldest members of the Supreme Court of Missouri in point of service, in a recent address at the State University strongly stressed the importance of maintaining to the highest degree in the selection of supreme judges the traditional ability, the integrity, the personnel and the high ideals of the state's highest tribunal.

In referring to the speech the Columbia Tribune says:

"He gave earnest accentuation to his statements. In making the above observations Judge Walker took occasion to add that the transition from the mere practice of the law to a judgship, circuit, appellate, or supreme is most difficult, and in many ways embarrassing to one who finds himself elevated to a position where the work of circuit and appellate judges must be carefully and painstakingly reviewed for error and where interpretation of constitutional questions that involve primal and basic principles of law and vested rights are constantly recurring. Judge Walker could have said more.

The Tribune says further:

"The importance of all state offices within the gift of the people is inconsiderable compared with that which attends the duties of the supreme court. None approach them in the exercise of such far reaching and important functions. The very nature and duties of the office, where at times the acts of other officials are passed upon and checked and advice is often given as to the scope and jurisdiction that attaches to them, signifies and exemplifies how the constitution which created state offices regarded their relative importance.

"With the present system of selecting candidates, it is most vital to general and individual welfare that deep consideration and careful scrutiny be given the qualifications of candidates for the supreme bench. The office is so important that personal advice and individual preference should not enter into the decision. Only ability and all round fitness should be looked at."

St. Louis—This city is maintaining its reputation as a convention center, 64 gatherings having been conducted here in May. More than 50 more are scheduled in the coming summer months.

Barber Turns Over 566 Acres to Bank

Deed of Trust to Two Farms Provides They May Be Sold.—Encumbrances Heavy, However.

A deed signed by Robert N. Barber and his wife, Amy Barber, conveying to A. F. Harvey, trustee, for the benefit of the Northwestern Bank, Burlington Junction, was filed in the recorder's office today. The deed conveys to the trustee two tracts of land, one containing 102 acres, lying west of Burlington Junction, and the other 464 acres, lying west of Burlington Junction, known as the Walker farm, subject to encumbrances now of record, and also together with the rents, issues and products of all land.

The deed states Barber is "now indebted and liable for the payment to the Northwestern Bank in the sums of money as shall and will be determined by the Commissioner of Finance of the State of Missouri now in charge of the bank," and if not immediately paid then this deed of trust and conveyance may be foreclosed immediately and all property hereby conveyed may be sold.

The deed shall become null and void if indebtedness to the bank is paid by Barber, the deed provides. It is not, however, a waiver or relinquishment in any manner or to any extent whatever of any other or prior security, rights or indemnity now held by the bank.

The deed was made on May 27 but not filed until today.

The net value of the two farms is considerably reduced by an encumberance of $6,500 on the smaller and $57,650 on the larger, as shown by the records of Mrs. Mamie Clardy, county recorder.

BRIAND STILL LACKS CABINET

SELECTION OF FINANCE MINISTER MOST IMPORTANT.

DOUMER WOULD SERVE

But His Appointment Is Being Opposed—Political Leaders Are Called Into Conference.

Paris, June 22.—Aristide Briand's cabinet making is held up tonight due to inability to secure a finance minister.

M. Poincare and M. Doumer, both of whom are being considered for the post, stated after conferring with Briand that as yet no choice of a finance minister has been made. M. Poincare does not want the post and M. Doumer is willing to take it on conditions, but there is considerable oppositon to Doumer's appointment.

Paris, June 22.—Having suffered a setback in his cabinet making by the refusal of M, Poincare to accept the ministry of finance, Aristide Briand today continued his efforts to form a ministry which will be certain of securing the confidence of parliament.

M. Briand today called into conference seven political leaders who are possible members of the cabinet and conferred with them for more than two hours over the proposed financial program. The conference was adjourned until 5 o'clock this afternoon when it is hoped that some definite decision will be reached.

"I am taking time and going to the root of the situation," M. Briand said, following the conference. "I am in hopes of forming a stable government and I won't form a cabinet unless I can secure the continued confidence of the Chamber. My last government was practically tied hand and foot and I was unable to take decisive measures. With a firm government, I am certain the situation can be cleared up more quickly than is generally supposed."

LADIES WORK IS EXPLAINED

NATIONAL AUXILIARY PRESIDENT TALKS YESTERDAY.

"SERVICE" IS SLOGAN

Frank B. Dodds, Acting National Commander Tells of New Legislation.—Teachers in Program.

The growth of auxiliary work was explained by Mrs. Marie Williams, national president, in a talk before the visitors yesterday afternoon at the State Teachers College auditorium. Mrs. Williams said that the women's organization is growing by leaps and bounds from coast to coast.

"At the present time, we are most grateful to Congress and President Coolidge for the recent pension legislation," she said. Mrs. Williams was one of the most active in working for this legislation. She told of appearing before the Congressional committee in a plea for the Spanish War veterans.

Mrs. Williams is the daughter of a Civil War veteran, the sister of three World War veterans, and the wife of a Spanish War veteran.

"Congress had provided for my father and my brothers, so why shouldn't my husband have been provided for," she said.

The national president has just completed a trip to fifteen state auxiliary departments. She came to Maryville from Indianapolis and returned last night to Springfield, Ohio, to address a similar meeting to that here. She was given a testimonial dinner at the Maryville Country Club last night by the state officers of the auxiliary.

Frank B. Dodds, acting national commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, spoke following Mrs. Williams. He told of the good work she had done in securing legislation.

"Our slogan is now 'service,'" he said. "We have secured our pension legislation. Now we must spend our time serving."

Mr. Dodds told of the work of Congress in connection with the veterans and also mentioned the national veterans convention in Des Moines, August 15-19, urging a large attendance by the Missouri delegation.

C. E. Wells, chairman of the faculty council at the College, spoke briefly to the visitors at the meeting yesterday afternoon. He told of the College and of its work in Northwest Missouri.

Misses Helen Dvorak and Laveta McClannahan, instructors at the College, gave several violin solos and readings respectively at the beginning of the program.

Concert at Baptist Church This Evening

The Miller Trio of Wichita, Kan., consisting of flute, violin and harp, will give a program at the Baptist Church this evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited. A free will offering will be taken.

The Rev. Ernest P. Taggart of Kansas City, former pastor of the Christian Church at Burlington Junction, and well known throughout Nodaway County, arrived in Maryville today for a week's visit with friends. Mrs. Taggart is expected the latter part of the week.

Newman Club Meeting.

The weekly meeting of the Newman Club was held this morning at the College. Miss Mattie Taylor gave an interesting talk on Creighton University at Omaha. The program also included a pantomime by Misses Bonnie Roe, Hazel Hawkins and Veryl Baker.

V. Schuetz, I-3rd Mo., Kansas City; W. H. Parkes, 1st Ill., Cav., Jefferson City; George W. Hebbeler, U. S. N., St. Louis.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Telegrams were quite the order of the day at the convention. A host of them were received and just as many were sent. Among those from whom the yellow slips came are: Asa W. Butler, United States Marshall; Congressman Joseph J. Manlove; and W. L. Matlocks, editor of the National Tribune, the national veterans publication.

Among the telegrams sent out this afternoon was one to Calvin Coolidge, thanking him for his support of recent pension legislation for Spanish War veterans.

The Theodore Roosevelt Post, located here was presented with a beautiful silk flag today by Herman A. Finke, past department commander and one of the powers of the convention.

Local police made three or four arrests yesterday when visitors became a bit unruly. One man was arrested for drinking a suspicious looking fluid (later found to be tea), another was taken for fighting, and still a third was grasped by the strong arm of the law for gambling with rubber dice.

And then it turned out that the whole thing was "framed."

Someone must have turned loose a whole race of reptiles in Maryville last night. At any rate, there were enough snaix and lizards running around loose to frighten the entire enrollment of women's colleges of America. It turned out, however, that these animals were human and that it was merely an initiation stunt of the playhouses of the encampment and auxiliary.

A parade of be-blackened men and be-painted women escorted some thirty-five candidates through hotels, restaurants, streets and alleys for about 30 minutes.

And, of course, there was a goat. It was a frienly old goat, which only balked at stairs. He was used with a vengeance later in the evening in the ditualistic ceremonies, it is said.

Snaix and Lizards joined in a dance at the I. O. O. F. hall following a "feed" late last night. The main offering on the menu at the meal was beans.

A comedy skit, "Mrs. White's Pink Tea Party," was presented by a group of St. Louis women at the joint fun session last night.

The ceremonies of today opened with a parade by the veteran's drum and bugle corps. Concerts were given at each corner of the square, in front of the Roach Cafe, and in front of the I. O. O. F. Hall.

Those badges that you see on various manly breasts?

Well, the one with the red and yellow ribbon supporting the U. S. W. V. emblem in the shape of a cross is the encampment badge. It gives Maryville as the place of meeting and the dates of the convention.

A similar decoration, except that it has the American flag instead of the red and yellow colors, is the U. S. W. V. camp badge. It has the American eagle and the emblems of the different branches of the United States armed forces: the anchor for the Navy, the rifle for the Infantry, the sabre for the Cavalry and the cannon for Artillery.

The Missouri Volunteers badge is a round medal supported by a ribbon of blue, white, red and yellow.

Below a red and black ribbon hangs the emblem of the Military Order of the Serpent, originally organized among the veterans of Philippine service, but now open to all members of the United Spanish War Veterans as a play order, that of the Snaix.

Nominated to Head Vets

Captain Thomas P. Boston, Capron Keithley Camp No. 15, Jefferson Barracks, Mo., was nominated for Department Commander of the United Spanish War Veterans of Missouri, at a session held this morning at the I. O. O. F. hall.

Captain Boston is retired after thirty years of service. He served in Cuba in 1898, also the Philippine Islands, and was fourteen months in France behind the front line trenches during the world war. He is now captain of the United States reserves and is stationed at Jefferson Barracks.

Captain Boston came to Missouri as a mere boy, was educated in the country schools of Osage County and taught in the public schools of that county before the war with Spain, volunteering for the Spanish war and remaining with the colors. He has the proud distinction of possessing eight excellent discharges from the United States army, a record no other comrade at this convention can boost. He says if elected he will devote his entire time to the department of Missouri in further building up and setting up legislation for the Vets of Missouri. Captain Boston is also past commander of Illinois Camp No. 49 as well as his camp No. 15 at Jefferson Barracks.

Some of the visitors have in addition a badge presented by the citizens of St. Louis. It is a round medal with the likeness of President McKinley and supported by the national colors. There are nearly as many other badges and decorations as there are convention delegates.

Yesterday when the parade was held, but one spectator raised his hat when the Colors passed the corner of Third and Main streets. A Maryville business man came forward and admonished the crowd. Soon the flag again passed by, and again Sergt. Guy L. Mercer was the only man to uncover. Is the flag becoming commonplace in Maryville?

Longest Day Not Much Longer Than Others This Month

Yesterday was the longest day of the year and the official beginning of summer, according to the United States Weather Bureau. After 10:30 p. m. the "summer solstice" began. This is the period which follows after the sun has reached its maximum height and the days are but a few seconds different in length.

From June 11 to July 1 there is a possible sunshine period of 14.9 hours out of each 24 hours; from July 1 to July 10, there is only 1 hour less daylight.

Even though the weather-man pronounced yesterday as the beginning of "astronomical summer" he is not so sure about the nearness of summer heat.

RED STAR OIL STOVE

There are two kinds of heat. One is the vigorous "Lively Heat" found above a bed of red hot coals or above a gas or electric burner. The other is the lazy, languid, lifeless heat, such as is found above the flame of a tallow candle.

The success of the Red Star Oil Stove is due to a patented burner which produces from ordinary kerosene or gasoline the same intense "Lively Heat" as that produced by a bed of red hot coals. Quickly makes an oven piping hot. Bakes a fluffy, light cake. Sears a juicy roast. Broils and fries to perfection. Beautiful, sturdy, sanitary, easily cleaned. Starts cooking the instant burner is lighted. Means a cool kitchen in summer. Simple anad easy to operate. No special piping or expansion tank required.

Convenient terms gladly arranged

Red Stars cost no more, size for size, than any good oil stove. Convenient terms make them easy to buy. Ask us for a demonstration.

Saturday night, after the weekly band concert and fun festival at Guilford, a foot race for boys brought in the Farnan boys, Cornelius, Paul and George, as winners of first, second and third place. They are brothers, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Farnan. Twelve boys started in the race and was close enough that a second race was necessary to determine the winner of third place.

Next Saturday afternoon and evening Guilford will again be host to its patrons with a full program of music, races, horseshoe pitching, and stunts put on by Guilford citizens and communities around Guilford. Guilford business men announce special bargains for the day.

Just to show that Guilford is not partial to boys, races for girls will be a feature.

STILL HOPE TO QUIT JUNE 30

SENATE MUST ACT ON FARM AID MEASURE.

"PASS IT OR ALJOURN

Representative Dickinson, Farm Bloc Leader, Explains Program—Cattle Eliminated From Provisions.

Washington, June 22.—Despite the adverse House vote on a June 30 adjournment, high hopes were held by administration leaders today that Congress would be homeward bound either by the end of June or the first few days of July.

The combination which succeeded in sending to the committee the adjournment resolution is held together by the loosest of ties and early Senate action on farm relief would cause wholesale deflection, according to leaders of both parties.

"If the House had passed the resolution," said one prominent Democrat, "it would have placed in the hands of every Senator the power to defeat important legislation. The House merely issued a warning to the Senate to clean up farm relief debate and other important measures at which time there will be a wholesale scrambling to vote for prompt adjournment."

Farm bloc leaders who supported Representative Madden, Republican of Illinois, in setting aside the resolution, declared today they were primarily interested in giving Congress ample opportunity to settle the agricultural problem.

"If the Senate passed the McNary bill," Representative Dickinson, Republican of Iowa, said, "we would be able to bring it before the House without worrying about a definite adjournment date. On the other hand, if the Senate defeats it, there would be no reason for us to stay here."

Washington, June 22.—The Senate today eliminated cattle from the Dawes-McNary-Haughen farm relief bill in adopting an amendment sponsored by Senator Kendrick, Democrat of Wyoming. The provisions of the bill would apply only to four basic farm commodities, wheat, corn, cotton and hogs.

Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, sponsor of the bill, favored the elimination of cattle from the measure. Cattle, he said, were included in the bill by the Senate committee without the advice of the cattle men themselves.

TO CAMPAIGN FOR TAX CUT

DEMOCRATS DISAGREE WITH PRESENT PROGRAM.

BIG SURPLUS IN VIEW

Coolidge Would Apply All Of Excess In Retiring Public Debt of About 19 Billion Dollars.

Washington, June 22. — President Coolidge's refusal to promise a further tax reduction despite the fact that the treasury closes its books for the fiscal year with an enormous surplus of approximately 400 million dollars and another big surplus in prospect for next year drew attacks today from the Democrats.

It appears not improbable that the Democrats will take the issue for the further reduction of taxes to the country in the approaching campaign, with the appeal "elect a Democratic Congress and get a new tax cut."

The Coolidge-Mellon program, as revealed by the President last night in his address to the bureau chiefs and by Secretary Mellon in recent statements, is to maintain the federal taxes at the present rate and use whatever surplus there may be for the retirement of the public debt. They hope to wipe out this debt now amounting to some 19 billion dollars, in twenty-five years.

The Democrats view this program with undisguised skepticism and in some cases absolute disbelief. Senator Robinson, Democrat of Arkansas, for instance, has openly charged that the huge surplus will be used as campaign thunder by the Republicans.

Washington, June 22.—A treasury surplus of 390 million dollars for this fiscal year, ending June 30, was predicted last night by President Coolidge but he withheld promise of early tax reduction pending a test of a program of "constructive economy" which he said should net surpluses also the next two years.

Addressing the semi-annual budget meeting, Mr. Coolidge estimated the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, should be closed with a surplus of 185 million dollars on the basis of present estimates of receipts and expenditures, and the following year with a margin of 20 million dollars.

"It would be unfortunate to raise hopes of further tax relief," he continued, "until we are sure the state of our finances justifies it. There is no such surety today.

Business Adjusts Itself.

"Business was quick to anticipate the last tax reduction. It was justified in doing so. To raise such hopes at this time might be to encourage business to anticipate again, as it did in 1925, further tax reduction. This might have a detrimental effect upon the stabilization of the country under the present tax law."

Facing the necessity of public improvements such as the recently authorized buildings program, the President said, the government could not expect an "appreciable reduction" in total annual expenses, and he proposed therefore a gradual reduction in personnel.

"It is very easy to have too many people on the pay roll," he said. "The reductions which have been made in personnel show no detrimental effect on our results. Rather has it seemed to improve theefficiency of the service. I am encouraged in the thought that we can have further reduction of personnel without discharging a single person, by the simple device of not filling all the vacancies that occur. This would not operate in the summary separation of anyone from the federal service.

Stresses Debt Reduction.

Debt reduction also was emphasized by Mr. Coolidge as an essential element in constructive economy. Every dollar applied to the debt saves at least four cents a year in interest to the people of this and coming generations, he said.

The President again reproached the state and local governments for their increased expenses, warning that the trend was fraught with grave consequences. In 1921, he said, the cost of all government in this country was 9½ billion dollars, of which federal expenditure constituted almost 60 per cent. In 1925 the cost of all government had increased to 11½ billion dollars, of which only 27 per cent was represented by federal expenditure.

While expenditures of the federal government probably will reach 3,600 million dollars the next fiscal year, Mr. Coolidge expressed a hope the following year could be concluded at a cost of 3,200 million dollars exclusive of the postal service and tax refunds.

CANADA MAY QUIT LEAGUE

MEMBERSHIP EXPENSE SAID TO BE CHIEF CAUSE.

DISCUSS WITHDRAWAL

This Would Leave American Continent Without Any Direct Representation In Peace Organization.

Ottawa, Ont., June 22.—Possibility of Canada's withdrawal from the League of Nations was being widely discussed in parliamentary circles here today as a result of heated debate in the Canadian Senate yesterday.

The attitude of the United States, together with the heavy cost involved in maintaining the membership were said to be the chief factors which are influencing Canadian politicians to work for withdrawal.

Senator Sir George Foster, in the course of yesterday's session, requested that the League question be thrown open for debate. Senator Casgrain remarked that if the Senate could get a free evening, it might have a pleasant time talking about the League of Nations ,ere it die a natural death.

It is said that the cost of maintenance of membership at the League is largely responsible for the present consideration of withdrawal.

U. S. to Make 2 New Dirigibles Safe, Says Nodaway Countian

E. R. ("Jack") Gorton, a former Nodaway County boy, now in the United States Naval Service at the Naval Air Station, San Diego, Cal., is going to write for the Democrat-Forum and Tribune a series of articles about what the United States' forces, afloat and ashore, are doing during these peace times.

Mr. Gorton was born and reared in this county and his parents live at Pickering.

"As the readers of your paper are taxpayers, helping to support this great navy of ours, it is only right that they should know a little bit of what the forces, afloat and ashore, are doing," Mr. Gorton writes, continuing: "I am in a position to write a little bit of what we are doing and expect to do; also of different projects of world interest, such as the Alaskan survey, etc. I know many world famous persons very well."

Mr. Gorton's first article follows:

Scientific research at the United States bureau of standards promises to make the two new dirigibles, each of 6,000,000 cubic feet capacity, safer than any previously built, according to advices received here at the Naval Air Station, San Diego. When completed it is the intention of the navy department to base one of the huge airships at San Diego.

In calling attention to the importance of airships, the department points out that in the years before the war German Zeppelins carried more than 42,000 passengers, and after the armistice, the Bodenese carried 2,500 more passengers without a single injury to passengers or crew. The polar flight of the Norge also was commented on by the department.

The aircraft squadrons will remain based at San Diego the remainder of the year. An intensive program of flight training and tactics has been outlined in preparation for the army-navy combined maneuvers off the New England coast next summer.

The navy department is bending every effort to rush to completion the new 42,000-ton aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga, according to advices received at fleet air headquarters here.

As a measure of economy and in view of the form of the contracts with the Fore River Shipbuilding corporation, under which the work is being done on a cost-plus basis, the navy department hopes to speed up construction and reduce the ultimate cost.

The Saratoga, which is to come to San Diego as flagship of the fleet air forces, relieving the Langley, is scheduled to go in commission late this fall in command of Capt. Henry Butler.

Already a number of aviators including Commander Charles P. Mason, former flight officer of the Langley, has been ordered to the Saratoga.

Rare Turkish tobaccos give distinction to Chesterfield's blend

Drawing from a photograph by our Mr. Gary, showing the loading of Turkish tobacco aboard lighters to be transferred to the ocean liner in midstream.

For Chesterfields, the best Turkish tobacco — and nothing but the best!

Where does Chesterfield get its spicy tang, its delicate piquancy of taste and aroma? From costly Turkish tobaccos, world-famous for their distinctive character, their sheer excellence of quality.

And how does Chesterfield get its mellow fullness and its satin-smoothness? From the way this fine Turkish is blended with the choicest Domestic leaf; carefully, shrewdly, in that can't-be-copied Chesterfield way that brings out the hidden flavors in each type of leaf.

It took no end of skill and patient experiment to get this blend right.

Was it worth it? Just smoke a Chesterfield and let the good tobaccos speak for themselves!

SYNOPSIS.

Big Tim Burke, real estate operator, and known to his associates as a land pirate, discharges one of his young lieutenants called Pol Gailliard, because he is irritated by the latter's sleekness of appearance and nonchalant manner. Pol learns that his ex-boss covets a desirable piece of Long Island property owned by Prof. Husted, and that another land shark, Michael Cadrigan, is after the same bit of land. Cadrigan lives on the shore of Long Island sound with his stepdaughter, Veronica. His estate is across the bay from that of Prof. Husted, who lives like a hermit; Veronica is his only visitor. Cadrigan asks Veronica to discontinue calling on the old man, intimating that the old man's enemies may harm her. Noticing a sloop anchored opposite the house, Veronica suggests to her stepfather that they call on the owner. They are invited on board and their host introduces himself as Pol Gailliard, posing as an itinerant poet and artist. That night Pol runs over to the Husted house, and while ashore sees a man in a flat bottomed boat cut his sloop adrift. He rows back to his boat and releases his second anchor. On his return to shore he meets Veronica in a canoe, coming from Prof Husted's house. The next night they meet at the professor's house, and as they are leaving Pol discovers that his boat has been scuttled. The professor invites him to be his guest. Pol accepts, and offers to escort Veronica home.

INSTALLMENT XIV

CADRIGAN THE CZAR.

Pol and Vreonica crossed the half mile of intervening water without talking. Pol was worried only about his cat. Making fast their small craft to the float, Pol went up the steps and through the formal garden with Veronica.

"I shall have to call your invitation off," he said. "I can't present myself as I now stand." Veronica seemed preoccupied. Pol had altered his opinion of her from the self-sufficient beauty he had first assayed her to the gentle sweet natured girl she really was.

"It is awful," she murmured. "Your poor Nightingale."

Scarcely had she spoken, when through the breathless silence that hung over the still water came a distant plaintive wail, tenuous and fine, but of carrying quality.

"Nighty!" gasped Pol rapturously. "She must be on the clewed up topsail."

"O, I'm so glad," murmured Veronica. "Go get her—hurry."

"Good night," said Pol. "I'll call, if I may, as soon as I can get some rags."

He turned and went down the steps like a leaping faun, whipped into his dinghey, and pulled with lusty strokes to the rescue of Nightingale.

Mr. Cadrigan listened to Veronica's confession of her nocturnal visits and their results with a solemn face. His voice when he spoke was smooth and gentle.

"You did wrong to go over, my dear, alone and at night. You know how he is held by these Italians. They are inflammable stuff once started, and no telling how or where they may go off."

"They would never dare annoy him, daddy, if you made it plain that he was to be left alone."

Cadrigan gave his big shoulders a hunch. "They are none so fond of me when all is said. If I were to start a row, it would mean that I should have to fire the lot of them, which I could ill afford at this moment with all the grain' and levelin' and roadmakin' I am under time contract for."

"And how about poor Mr. Gailliard?" asked Veronica.

Cadrigan frowned. "I should say he was out of luck. But that is not your fault. If a wandering floater chooses to walk on the track, he has himself to blame if he gets run down."

Veronica sighed. "I'm afraid he has lost everything. It was my fault for asking him to go with me to the professor's house."

"That I am unwilling to admit," said Cadrigan. "The chances are they thought he was there to discover what was goin' on. You know yourself what these folk are like, never lookin' at what they can see but for something that they cannot."

The professor seemed to take an immediate liking to him," said Veronica, "but I must say I was surprised that he should have asked him to be his guest."

"One could scarcely do less for a man shipwrecked on his shores," Cadrigan observed.

"Besides, they are both poets," mused Veronica.

"True, and of similar merit in their different styles, I should say," Cadrigan answered, dryly. "They should have a grand time comparing notes and each spouting to the other. But friend Pol is a likeable lad, so let us hope that he may persuade the old bird to live in a manner more becomin' his talents—and open up the property to admiring neighbors. Perhaps Gailliard may prove the thin edge of the wedge."

Veronica thought of Pol's projects for the hermit's peace, and smiled. She had not told Cadrigan about these. But as if turned to her mental wave length, he said, "What I dread even more than seeing somebody else get control of the property is what the old man might take into his head to do himself. Though a hermit, he has philanthropic ideas. What if he were to donate the best of it for an orphan asylum or the like?"

"Well, what if he did? Veronica challenged.

"It would kill the real estate values all about it, and put a crimp in those even as far away as this. As an objectionable feature for a fashionable neighborhood, there is nothing worse than an orphan asylum. It is a constant reproach thrown in the faces of the rich, that they should be squandering money in silly, selfish ways, and so many children without homes. It is a reproach to the women who have been slackers in doing their bit, and to many of the men who have done more than theirs and then not paid the shot. Such folk as are my clients would not endure an orphan asylum in the same county, where they would have to pass it and see those toddling reproofs."

Veronica looked at him in surprise. "You seem to feel pretty strongly about it yourself, daddy."

"I do. In some ways I am hard as nails, but where it concerns children I am soft. No doubt I have it from my father. He had his hand often in the Tammany wampum, but he scattered it freely to help the city's gutterspines. He had been one himself, though his own father was well born. When it came to helping the kiddies to breathe and play, it was east side, west side, all around the town, with him."

Veronica looked across at the promontory. "That would be a beautiful place for some sort of a children's home."

"I have thought of that and trembled," Cadrigan said. "A stylish cemetery would be less of a body blow to the stock of my Land and Improvement company. Such is not without its redeeming features to the idle rich, who select their footwear from serried ranks of dead men's costly shoes. They can look at it and say, 'There, I have got you where I want you, and need go hat in hand to you no longer.' Still, as a business proposition I would not care for that."

Veronica glanced at him with twinkling eyes. "How about a nice fish factory or home for incurables?" she asked. "Mr. Gaillard suggested that the professor might start something of this sort if they keep on threatening him."

"O, murder!" said Cadrigan. "Now, do you know I had a hunch that trouble might come of that young man. He has a face like his cat. And after all the pains I have taken to block everything that might prove an eyesore in this neighborhood. I was enraged with Tim Burke when he tried to butt in here and plaster the place with his model homes. I was furious with the old fool less for his threatening to mess up my game than for his having so little sense about his own. We started at about the same time but working on different lines, like two young doctors, one of whom chooses a big dollar practice in a tenement district, and the other a twenty dollar consultant fee in a rich one and the patients, to begin with, few and far between. I saw him up here not long ago, and I would rather have the devil walking widdershins around one of those cypress trees. And now you tell me this meddling Gailliard is flirting with the professor."

"Well," said Veronica, "all you've got to do is to issue a general order that the professor is not to be molested."

Cadrigan shot her a swift, suspicious look.

"You talk as if I was the czar here. How can I issue such a ukase without getting myself into a snarl?"

"Just let it be known that if they keep on tormenting him, he's apt to start something of his own."

"That might lead to more than idle threats. These Italians of mine are no fools. They have known their predecessors to grab off little shore and corner lots in such growing places as this and sell them later for a fortune. There is an Italian who worked for me with pick and shovel at Greenwhich, now rollin' about in his limousine by this very thing, and many others like him. They are Caesar's legionaries come to earth again, and colonization is in their blood. I am more interested in the present than in the future of this country—after me the deluge. Now what are we to do about this poll parrot that has been struck adrift and is by way of bein' made a pet of by old Robinson Crusoe over there? 'Day by day, in every way,' this thing is gettin' worse and worse."

Read of Other Women Who Found Health

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 35 Central Ave., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at some time in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

The Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass., will gladly furnish other women with these names upon request.

A CHECK ROOM FOR PARKING WORRIES

The Strenuous Years Between 35 and 55 Put An Unusual Burden on Bread Winners Who Should Watch Their Health More Closely.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

A few weeks ago the American Medical Association met in Dallas, Texas. It was presided over by my old friend, Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, of New York City.

In his presidential address Dr. Phillips promised "seven years life's expectancy in addition to the twenty gained in the last century." This hope is founded on the condition that the public avail itself of what scientific medicine can give.

Infancy has been made less dangerous, largely through the insistence upon good milk. Old age has grown less formidable by reason of better housing, the removal of centres of infection in the body and the practice of improved methods of living.

But in the years between thirty-five and fifty-five or sixty death is just as imminent as ever. Diseases of the heart and blood vessels, pneumonia and some of the nervous diseases are reaping their regular returns.

Economic necessity and economic pressure are responsible for some at least of the ailments which make middle life just as dangerous as ever. Men must work. Worse than this, they seem determined to worry, stay up late and sleep badly. In striving for success they wear themselves out, ruining the heart, blood vessels and nervous system.

When men and women will take care of themselves during the high pressure years of their lives, just as they take care of their horses, blooded dogs and canary birds, they will acquire these added years promised by Dr. Phillips.

Worry over money is one of the most deadly of worries. It breaks the sleep, destroys the appetite, overworks the heart and prepares the way for physical disaster. Other worries—all worries, indeed—are bad enough, but business worries seem to sap the vitality and resistance of the strongest of men.

Money worries are not confined to men. They attack women, too. Many a widow on her own resources, many a young woman supporting a widowed mother, many a devoted wife, shearing her husband's troubles—all these have to struggle against the killing effects of worry.

It is too bad that some place does not exist where worries can be taken and checked. A checkroom for worries would be the most popular resort in the world.

We cannot hope for Dr. Phillips' seven years until we learn to dodge worry. Good health depends to a great extent on the state of mind.

It is likewise true that the state of the health affects the mental processes. Chronic indigestion causes an otherwise clear-thinking and cheerful mind to become morose, sad and depressed and incapable of lucid and convincing thought.

Whether the fundamental defect is physical or mental, it is a defect, and capable of reducing the safety of that period of life which should be the best and most substantial of the whole career. Greater attention to the middle period of life will go far toward adding the seven years to life's expectancy.

I wish I had it in my power to wipe out the impediments to vigorous health. Mussolini can destroy the slums and shacks of the Eternal City. Would that somebody could so govern human affairs that the disease breeding conditions of middle life might be destroyed!

Here is one field where doctor and preacher can do effective teamwork. Here is a problem which can be successfully dealt with only by the recognition of spiritual and physical values. Both must be considered to gain these seven years.

Believes Men Should Live to Be 150 Yrs. Old

New York, June 22 (United Press)—Men should live to be 150 years old, Richard Lynch, president of the Unity society of New York told the 1,500 delegates here attending the thirteenth annual convention of the International New Thought Alliance.

Right thinking and Divine thinking he said would be the means of longevity.

"Eternal life is not discovered in the laboratories of men but in the laboratory of God," he told his hearers. "To eliminate imperfect thought and put in divine thought—right, accurate, and scientific thought—is the way to eternal life taught by the Master."

FARM GLIMPSES

BY BILLY TILSON.

George Burch, east of Graham, reports considerable damage done to the fields and crops down in Hughes township but the rains are putting the pastures in good condition for the stock.

William Burn, southwest of Barnard, says a very heavy rain fell in that part of the county and some fields badly washed. It had only been a few days before another heavy rain fell there and the farmers were not in need of any moisture.

J. R. Gallagher, northeast of Bedison, says he has his crop in fine shape, having cultivated his corn over the second time and has one field ready to lay by. J. R. says he commences his work early in the spring and keeps a little ahead all the time so a few days of bad weather doesn't worry him any.

J. E. Anderson and L. L. Houstin of Hopkins were Maryville visitors yesterday.

Cecil Waldroff, wife and son, southwest of Barnard, were visiting in the city yesterday. Mr. Waldroff says it will be several days before the farmers will get in the field down that way, a great amount of damage being done by the heavy rain of Sunday night.

Carden and Owens, southeast of Quitman, will ship out a load of hogs to the St. Joseph market this week. They have already sent out two loads lately. They say $2500 looks good for a load of hogs.

The Farmers exchange at Hopkins had out four load of hogs last week. They were shipped to the St. Joseph market. Frank New, Jr., says they sent out twenty-nine load of stock from that point last month.

A. L. Pistole, south of Hopkins, lost several acres of corn by the rain and his land being damaged by washing. Mr. Pistole is cutting down a field of oats and putting it up for hay.

S. P. Curnutt, northeast of Barnard, reports corn looking good and says the Platte river had not done much damage to the crops.

Pearl Gray, John Burch, Elmer Pense, James Millbanks, John Wolf and Judge Billingsby, C. C. McDermott, E. A. Watson and J. A. Griffey of Clearmont were transacting business in Maryville yesterday. They say a few of the farmers up that way were cultivating corn yesterday afternoon.

Ol Roney, north of Maryville, has a fine flock of ewes and spring lambs. The lambs will be marketed soon.

James Glenn, Wes Miller and George Brown, southeast of Burlington Junction, were Maryville visitors yesterday. They report some of the fields washed by the rains but say the prospect for corn is good.

Grover Nickols, Harve Thompson and Earl Duncan, east of Quitman, were in the city yesterday. They say some damage was done to the fields over their way, crops looking fairly well.

Superior Cleaning Co. Begins An Addition

Work has been begun on an addition to the quarters of the Superior Cleaning Co., to be located back of the present building at 214 North Main street.

The addition is to be a separate one-story building, 23 by 20 feet in size, and extending to the alley. It will be entirely fireproof, constructed of brick with a concrete floor, a roof of reinforced concrete and windows of steel and wire glass. The walls will be twelve feet high and twelve inches thick. The plans have been approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and by the city council.

Sam Bithos, proprietor, states that the new building will be equipped with the latest dry cleaning machinery, designed for better and quicker service. The cleaning fluid, which is non-explosive, will be stored outside the tank, pumped to the cleaner and then returned to an outside tank underground.

Mr. Bithos has been in the dry cleaning business here for twelve years and has steadily improved his plant until it is one of the best in this section.

Car Into Ditch to Spare An Aged Man

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Miller and Albert Forcade, Near Graham, Pinned Down but Escape With Bruises.

An attempt to avoid striking an aged man, who was walking in the road, resulted in an automobile spill near Graham about noon Sunday, inflicting severe bruises upon the occupants but no serious injuries.

In the car were Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Miller and Albert Forcade. They were driving to town from their homes about three miles north of Graham. As they turned the corner near the Ward Stevenson farm, Mr. Miller saw the old man in the road. He was very deaf and did not hear the warning given, and it was necessary for the driver to turn out of the road. In turning back into the road, the car upset and fell with its occupants under it.

Help soon arrived and the victims were taken out from under the car. All were severely bruised but not seriously injured.

The top and windshield of the car were ruined, but there was no other damage.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 22.—Grain prices closed irregular on the Chicago Board of Trade today, save in the corn pit where all positions continue to sag.

July wheat was a small fractional lower but the September delivery was up while December was quoted at the same figure as in yesterday's close.

The weather market indicated generally clear weather over all sections of the country with the exception of parts of Kansas where a few scattered showers were reported. Rains have not hindered the Southwestern crop movement which is now under way, while harvesting continues in full swing. Some elevator companies in the Southwest are raising their estimate of the Kansas yield to 150,000,000 bushels or 10,000,000 more than was generally expected.

July corn closed at 69¾, a new low for the season while the other deliveries also registered fractional losses. Cash prices were about a half cent lower here today.

Oats lost small fractions in the July and September positions and remained unchanged for December after a dull day. Rye prices took a further slump and now are about back to where they started from a few days ago.

Provisions closed about the same as on Monday.

CATTLE AND HOGS STEADY —LAMBS HIGHER.

Kansas City Stock Yards, June 21.—Good to choice fed steers and the better classes of short fed and grass fat steers were fully steady. The plain to medium classes were weak, spots slightly lower. The general tone in the trade was active and a good clearance was reported. Hog prices were uneven ranging from strong to 10 cents lower, but in the average showing steady. The weakness was in the lighter weights. Lamb prices ruled strong to 25 cents higher, the first advance shown in the past two weeks.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 12,000 cattle, 9,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep, compared with 11,000 cattle, 12,000 hogs, and 8,000 sheep a week ago, and 13,200 cattle, 10,300 hogs, and 7,000 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Demand for good to choice fed steers was active at strong prices. Medium to good kinds were steady and plain short fed and grass fat steers were steady to weak. A fairly good clearance was reported. The run included all kinds and classes and for that reason the volume of trade was large. In Chicago where the bulk of the run was fed steers the market was weak. Here long yearling steers sold up to $10.25; heavy weight steers up to $10.15, and a few heifers $10.15. The bulk of the fed steers brought $9 to $10. About 100 carloads of south Texas grass fat steers sold at $6 to $8.25. Prime heifers sold up to $10.15, and cows up to $7.75. Veal calves were 50 cents lower, top $9.50. Bulls were steady.

Stockers and Feeders.

Receipts of stockers and feeders remained small for this season of the year at firm prices. A good many fleshy feeders are available and they are being taken for a short feed. Stock cows and heifers were scarce.

Hogs.

Though some sales were quoted weak and a few others stronger the average prices were steady with last Saturday and a good clearance was reported. Packers traded slowly but shippers were active and kept prices fully steady on the medium weights. The top price $15 was paid for light lights, and the bulk of the 170 to 260 pound hogs sold at $14.35 to $14.65. Packing sows brought $12.75 to $13.25; stags $12 to $12.75 and stock hogs and pigs $14.75 to $15.75.

Sheep and Lambs.

Lambs were 25 cents higher, the first upturn the market has encountered in the past two weeks. Western lambs sold at $14.85 to $15.10; native lambs $13.50 to $14.50; Texas yearlings $11 to $11.25; wethers $8.25 to $8.60 and ewes $5 to $6.

Horses and Mules.

Trade in horses and mules is still limited by the light receipts. Prices remain unchanged.

TO CONTINUE AS REPUBLIC

FOES OF GERMAN MONARCHY ARE TOO NUMEROUS.

MANY REMAIN AWAY

Of Those Who Oppose Confiscation Plan, Number Are for Republic —Many Fear to Vote.

Washington, June 22.—Germany is to remain a republic.

This is the real meaning of the result of Sunday's referendum in the Teuton republic on confiscation of royal property. Paradoxical as it may seem, the vote, which leaves the Hohenzollern ex-Kaiser and his princelings in possession of millions of dollars worth of valuable property also means that the republic has sufficient supporters to maintain the republican form of government.

It may be interpreted in many quarters as a victory for monarchism.

But, the nearly 15,000,000 votes registered for confiscation show that foes of Hohenzollernism are sufficiently numerous to guarantee against restoration of that regime. Moreover, they do not represent the entire strength of republicanism.

The 15,000,000 represent the militant forces of republicanism; but there are other thousands in Germany, who favor a republic, who did not however, favor the confiscation plan. Some of these stayed from the polls because of fear. Others were swayed by the argument that this confiscation would be the forerunner of other confiscations of "private" property.

Germany as a whole, had no clear exposition of just what Hohenzollern property is 'state" property and just what is private. President Von Hindenburg's dramatic stand against confiscation undoubtedly influenced many to remain at home from the polls.

And in the Prussian and Bavarian monarchistic strongholds it would have meant ostracism—and sometimes worse—for men and women to go to the polls. Anyone who went Sunday went to vote only a single way, namely, for confiscation, and consequently such voters were marked in communities where a state bordering on fuedalism still exists.

Pope Pius Creates Two New Cardinals

Holds Secret Consistory And Ceremony Is Carried Out In All Its Medieval Splendor.

Rome, June 22.—Pope Pius XI, garbed in a pure white cassock; with all the cardinals present in Rome attending, held a secret consistory this morning in the lavish Hall of Consistory in the Vatican palaces. Unbroken and refined centuries of continuity, the ceremonial was carried out in all its medieval splendor and color.

His Holiness created two cardinals; Monsignor Carlo Perosi, assessor of the Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office; and Monsignor Luigi Capotosti, secretary of the Sacred Congregation of the Sacraments.

Cardinal Cerretti, who was created a cardinal at the last consistory, and is now in Rome to receive the red hat at the public consistory on Thursday, attended his first consistory.

The cardinals gathered in the Hall of Consistory accompanied by their secretaries. There was an array of Swiss guards, papal gendarmerie and Palatine guards, while a number of distinguished guests were admitted only to witness the entrance and seating of the Holy Father on his throne. A bell rang and the master of ceremonies invited all those present to kneel for it signified that the Pope was approaching surrounded by his court and guard of honor, consisting of Swiss and Noble guards.

The Pope entered and blessed the assemblage while walking slowly toward the throne. He was seated and gave the sign that the proceedings were ready to begin. The Papal Majordomo, Monsignor Sanz de Samper, then gave orders for the "Extra Omnes," which meant that all strangers must retire leaving the Holy Father alone with his cardinals.

The doors were closed as soon as all had withdrawn. The pope then delivered an allocution and nominated the two new cardinals. Immediately, two papal messengers were dispatched to the homes of the new cardinals to convey the news. After the ceremony, the Pope retired to his apartments.
